Moderator: Mr. Panayotis Bernitsas, Managing Partner – Bernitsas Law

Panelists:

- H.E. Nikos Papathanasis, Alternate Minister of Development & Investments – Private Investments & PPPs – Hellenic Republic
- Mrs. Ravina Advani, Head of Energy Natural Resources & Renewables Coverage – BNP Paribas
- Mrs. Penelope Lazaridou, General Financial Manager – Executive Board Member - GEK TERNA

- Mr. Gregory D. Dimitriadis, CEO & Member of the Board of Directors – Hellenic Corporation of Assets and Participations SA

Mr. Panayotis Bernitsas, Managing Partner – Bernitsas Law, stated that over the last years, there has been a determined effort in the private and public sector to attract inward investment. A series of sweeping legislative changes aimed at cutting down on bureaucracy, modernizing public administration and creating an investor friendly legislative environment, have been successfully introduced and more are in the pipeline.

He underlined that in the public sector, there has been a clear trend over the last two decades towards the capitalization of the very substantial portfolio of assets owned directly or indirectly by the State across a number of industries, such as infrastructure, utilities, real estate, energy and tourism, and the Government has launched an ambitious privatization programme.

Mr. Bernitsas noted that in the private sector, Greece has also begun attracting significant investments from private equity funds over the last years, following the gradual restoration of investor confidence in the country's prospects. Major deals have taken place in the healthcare, hospitality and real estate, insurance, financial services, fish farming and food sectors. Standout examples are the acquisition of the landmark Astir Palace hotel and the Hellenikon project.

He highlighted that initiating, completing and implementing projects is not always a smooth process, with political roadblocks, technical obstacles and legislative impediments being encountered along the way in many instances.

"However", he stated "the development of State assets is a core component of this Government's agenda, which has been clear in welcoming foreign investors and creating a stable, friendly environment for inward investment."

"This in turn has increased the interest of major international specialized funds in Greece. Large scale projects involving ports, airports, energy, real estate, hospitality and transport and communication networks are underway, and these have created a positive climate within which foreign investors are responding. We have witnessed a snowballing trend whereby initial investments are followed by more in the same and different sectors by existing and new investors", Mr Bernitsas added.

Mr. Bernitsas stated: "I anticipate that the major immediate challenge is whether there will be a knock-on effect of the geopolitical volatility and instability caused by the outbreak of the war in the Ukraine. It does not seem to have affected the appetite for inward investment yet and for the moment, the course towards upgrading of major State assets, acquisition of important private companies and the development of private assets is steady."

H.E. Nikos Papathanasis, Alternate Minister of Development & Investments – Private Investments & PPPs – Hellenic Republic stated that: "The 23rd Annual Capital Link Invest in Greece Forum is a great way for Greece to highlight not only the progress but the potential of the Greek economy as well as the investment prospects in a time where the global impact of the pandemic is still present.

When the Greek people entrusted us with the responsibility of the country's governance, we immediately proceeded with the implementation of reforms to improve the business environment, attract private and strategic investments and set the country on a path of economic recovery. Fast track processes for businesses to operate, digitization of the public sector that drastically reduced bureaucracy, tax incentives such as 22% corporate tax rate, 5% dividend tax rate and 200% over-depreciation for digital and green fixed capital investments are some of the actions we took. Structural reforms that improved competitiveness and fiscal credibility continued to be pursued during the pandemic and the results of our policy are already obvious. The fact that the government was able to pay off the final tranches of the IMF loan, two years earlier, is a strong signal of our performance to rebuild the country's fiscal credibility.

During the last two years, Greece has recorded a significant leap in attracting Foreign Direct Investments. Our stable and reform-oriented Government, the country's geographic location and a high-skilled work force, constitute our main comparative advantages to attract foreign companies that want to set up their regional headquarters.

Multinational technological firms express huge interest on FDIs in sectors such as data centers and shared services that will add our country to the world's largest cloud infrastructure footprint. Microsoft's important investment for the development of data centers is moving forward, Pfizer is creating a data center for digital medicinal research and a global center for business operations and services in Thessaloniki while Cisco is creating a Center for Digital Transformation and has signed an MOU with the South Aegean Region and ONEX for the development of the International Maritime and Technology Innovation Center in Syros. Investments of other major firms such as TeamViewer, P&I, Beat, Sparkle, Lamda Hellix and Amazon, indicate that Greece is on the verge of becoming a strategic hub in the greater area of Central and Eastern Europe and a global R&D point of reference for the region.

The Ministry of Development and Investments has launched a flexible and modern regulatory framework for both private and strategic investments as well as for the deligitization program of Just Transition.

The new overall framework on strategic investments is aiming at investments reconfiguration through the simplification of relevant procedures, the introduction of additional incentives and the inclusion of new categories of strategic investments and new fields of economic activity such as data centers, movie studios and Important Projects of Common European Interest (IPCEIs). The new Investment Development Law is based on 13 targeted state aid schemes, emphasizing on the National Recovery and Resilience Plan guides and pillars.

Just Transition is a major priority for our Government towards a climate-neutral and circular economy. The new legal framework sets a strong governance ecosystem which will ensure coordination and effectiveness in managing financial resources and facilitating the implementation of investments related to Just Transition. Our Government's goal is not only to replace coal with sustainable and more competitive electricity generation methods but also to transform the productivity model, especially in the affected areas that are heavily dependent on lignite. Incentivizing investments in areas such as clean energy, industry and trade, smart agriculture, sustainable tourism, technology and education will contribute in this direction and will create new jobs.

The Greek Government is already implementing a very ambitious strategic plan for dynamic growth and we have every reason to be optimistic for the future of Greece."

Mrs. Ravina Advani, Head of Energy Natural Resources & Renewables Coverage – BNP Paribas highlighted that: “that this is a critical point in time for the energy transition generally, and that Greece’s ESG and net zero trajectory present significant investment and growth opportunities. “There are a number of parallels between Greece and the US’ energy transition needs. Both countries are looking to accelerate retirements of their heaviest emitting fossil fuel, coal. Both are promoting renewables build out, energy efficiency initiatives, and the electrification of energy-intensive sectors such as transportation. Both countries have a need for rapid development of supporting infrastructure like transmission.” Mrs. Advani noted that certain, more established renewables technologies like onshore wind and utility-scale PV are increasingly competitive with new gas. “...but while renewable energy will play a large role in our worldwide decarbonization efforts, it will remain important to acknowledge the practical realities involved as well. Renewables intermittency continues to be a big limitation. As a lower emitting baseload fuel alternative, natural gas will continue to enable the energy transition by ensuring energy security and supporting further renewables development. To draw another parallel, natural gas is part of both the US and Greece’s net zero roadmaps and in fact, the United Nations Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) has designated gas (under certain conditions) as one of the transition energies needed to achieve carbon neutrality in 2050.” Regardless, Mrs. Advani anticipates that future technological advancements and the meaningful investments being made in emerging decarbonization technologies like hydrogen, storage, or CCUS, will accelerate Greece’s (and the US’) trajectory to net zero. “It is a testament to Greece’s serious commitment that more than 30% of the European Union crisis funds for Greece were directed at green projects and opportunities in 2021. Despite the reopening of certain lignite-fired power plants and the recent extension of the phase out period, these projects continue to present an enormous opportunity for Greece to progress its net-zero ambitions, which the country remains highly committed to.”

Mrs. Penelope Lazaridou, General Financial Manager – Executive Board Member - GEK TERNA mentioned that: “At Gek Terna Group, we are the leaders in the fields of concessions, energy and construction, operating in complementary and synergistic sectors.

Under an inspired management, we possess the required specialization, the financial resources, the competitive advantage and especially the internal strength to claim and develop large-scale investments and to contribute decisively in the dynamic transformation of the Greek economy.

Despite the headwinds, we never hesitate, but always seek to turn threats into opportunities and weakness into strength pursuing innovative and strategic business thinking.”

Mr. Christos Balaskas, Vice President & General Manager - Greece – Eldorado Gold Corporation commented that:

“Eldorado Gold is a valued investor in Greece. Since the beginning of our activity and despite the difficulties, Eldorado Gold has invested extensively to upgrade the Cassandra Mines, begin construction at Skouries, restore environmental impacts from previous owners and prepare an investment plan that will expand the region's potential for the next two and a half decades.” And added with regard to Hellas Gold’s prospect: “Our business is founded on two strong pillars: the solid financials of Skouries and the fact that we produce essential raw materials for Europe’s manufacturing, energy transition, and self-sufficiency. Overall, we are well positioned to begin a new future for this investment which will be a source of prosperity for all”.

Mr. Gregory D. Dimitriadis, CEO & Member of the Board of Directors – Hellenic Corporation of Assets and Participations SA stated that:

“Greece is attracting once again international interest, as the economy is being fortified, and institutional changes are reshaping the country. These changes are already leading to investments and growth. Despite the Covid-19 and energy crises, as well as the expected impact on the economy by the sanctions towards Russia, the Greek economy continues to grow. The country has succeeded a fast-track digital transformation, several flagship investments are now on track, and Greece is once again on investors’ spotlight.

This is an important momentum for HCAP (Hellenic Corporation of Assets and Participation), the Public Wealth Fund of Greece. HCAP is a holding company founded in 2016 with the Greek State as the sole shareholder, but independent in its business decisions and corporate governance. Its mission is: to take an active role in the modernization of State-Owned Enterprises, to maximize the value of public assets and real estate, to provide upgraded services for citizens / consumers and to contribute to the national economy through investments.

HCAP, although only 11 months in its new era, as an active shareholder, has already delivered concrete case studies:

- The share capital increase of the Public Power Company (PPC) that reached €1.35 billion in the first hour of its book-building procedure, surpassing all expectations. The company is now able to make significant investments in Greece and abroad and lead the country's green transition. This is becoming increasingly necessary, as the country will not only be able to secure its energy safety but will also be able to strengthen the European Union's energy grid.
- The beginning of operations of the 100-million-euro fund 'Phaistos', which is now officially in the countdown for the first investments to create a 5G ecosystem and drive the country's digital competitiveness in sectors such as logistics, cybersecurity, and space technologies.
- The successful concession of the Egnatia Motorway and the upcoming concession of Attica Motorway will act as a catalyst for investments in transport, manufacturing, and tourism.
- On the privatizations front, HRADF has also formed a new Project Preparation Facility (PPF) to assist with major strategic green investments and the absorption of Recovery and Resiliency Fund (RRF) resources, starting with a portfolio of projects budgeted at 2.5 billion euros.

Tourism, infrastructure, and especially energy, are drawing most of the attention. Our message to US investors is that the time to invest in Greece is now, as the country is emerging into a pillar for stability. We are confident that the 23rd Annual Capital Link Invest in Greece Forum will be a platform to share ideas and developments of common interest."
